

GOVERNMENT'S VICTORY IN TVA POWER RULING

C. W. COSTELLO, BUSINESS MAN, DIES IN LISBON

Operated Confectionery Firm in Pittsburgh for Years

WAS ACTIVE ALSO IN WELFARE WORK

Funeral Service to Be Held Tuesday Morning in Church

Charles W. Costello, 78, of Lisbon, former president of the Weaver-Costello Confectionery Co., of Pittsburgh, died at 11:45 p. m. Sunday at his home on West Lincoln st., Lisbon.

Death was due to heart disease, following a three months' illness.

Mr. Costello was well known throughout the Lisbon district and many friends elsewhere in the county. Although he operated his business in Pittsburgh, he had made his home in the county seat since he was a child.

Active in Welfare

He was active in Lisbon civic affairs and was known to have benefited many in welfare work, although he never revealed the extent to which his philanthropies went.

The son of Michael and Susan Costello, he was born in Glasgow, Pa., a little settlement near Smith's ferry. His family, natives of County Clare, Ireland, first arrived in Canada, and then came to the United States.

When he was only seven weeks old, his parents moved to Lisbon, where he lived until he was six years old. He was a graduate of Lisbon High school, studying there when W. W. Taylor was superintendent of schools. Taylor later became congressman from the Eighteenth district.

After graduating from High school, he studied bookkeeping and held a position with the Weaver-Costello Confectionery Co., of East Liverpool. His greatest trouble by the close work, he left this business and went to Pittsburgh several years afterward, where he was employed as a salesman with the Zoder Confectionery Co.

Form Partnership

Then he formed a partnership with E. B. Weaver of Pittsburgh and they organized the Weaver-Costello Confectionery Co., opening a large plant on Second ave., Pittsburgh.

Fifteen years ago, Mr. Costello retired from active business, although he retained his interest in the company.

Farmers Battle Blizzard When Chewin' Runs Out

EMMETTSBURG, Ia., Feb. 17.—A half dozen farmers, frostbitten and weary, shuffled into a store.

"How did you fellows get to town through the drifts?" asked a clerk.

"With a bobbed and four teams we had to come across country part of the way. It was a tough trip, but we just had to get some supplies."

"Out of fuel?"

"Nope."

"Out of food, then?"

"We can use some groceries, but what we need most is chewing tobacco. We've been out for nearly a week."

Dog Frozen to Ice

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 17.—A police dog's ride down the cold Monongahela river with its tail frozen to a cake of ice has ended happily—and the tail wags as cheerfully as ever.

R. H. Irwin, engineer at Lock No. 1, heard the dog howling as the big cake rushed down the ice-choked current. Other lockmen assisted Irwin in pulling the ice ashore.

Then they discovered the animal's hind quarters welded in the cake. They carried ice and all inside and in a few hours thawed the dog out.

Irwin said he couldn't say how long the dog had to stand the tortures of the terrifying journey but it could not have been long.

TRUSTIES UPSET ESCAPE AT JAIL

Torture Suspects Kept Behind Bars When Three Prisoners Aid St. Clairsville Jailor

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, Feb. 17.—Three trustees aided Jailor Frank Johnson to thwart the escape of two men from the Belmont county jail early today in a "break" marked by the stabbing of four men.

Conrad Fritz, 40, and Joe Gambon, 30, charged with the robbery of John Todd, a local farmer, escaped from the jail after using an improvised wooden key to escape from their cell. When Johnson opened the outer door to a cell block the prisoners rushed him.

Johnson and two of the trustees, Dan Finelli and W. M. Ankrom, were stabbed while overpowering Gambon, who also was wounded.

Fritz leaped head first from a window of the jail office, but landed on his head and was unconscious when picked up.

BORAH FORCES LAUNCH BATTLE FOR DELEGATES

Idaho Senator Will Invade Ohio in Middle of March

CANDIDATE LIST BEING PREPARED

Col. Frank Knox Obtains Papers to Enter Ohio, Also

(By Associated Press)

AKRON, Feb. 17.—Senator William E. Borah's forces swung into the fight for Ohio's 52 delegates to the Republican national convention today with plans for speed in the contest shaping up against Col. Frank Knox and possible other candidates.

In Ohio in March

A strategy board of national and state Borah leaders announced last night that the Idaho senator would invade the state about the middle of March on a speaking tour.

This was followed by a statement that a list of candidates for delegate-at-large would be announced "shortly" and that the work of preparing petitions would be "pushed rapidly." The Ohio primary is May 12.

Members of the strategy board said it was unlikely the list would be issued prior to a meeting Tuesday of the Republican state central committee, which found its plans for a "favorite son" delegation jeopardized by Borah's decision to seek Ohio delegates.

Knox papers to enter in Ohio were obtained Saturday by his Chicago headquarters. However, Ed Schorr, chairman of the central committee, said last week that Knox' decision probably would be delayed until after the committee decided what to do.

Opens in Youngstown

Plans for Borah's swing around Ohio call for his first speech to be made in Youngstown, followed by appearances in Cleveland, Columbus, Cincinnati, Toledo and Akron. No dates have been set.

Rep. Hamilton Fish, Jr., of New York, and former Congressman Royal Johnson of South Dakota met with the Ohio Borah backers, including former Senator Roscoe McCulloch of Columbus, Daniel E. Morgan of Cleveland, Gilbert Bettman of Cincinnati, Charles McIntyre of Zanesville, and John S. Knight, Akron editor.

The state central committee's meeting Tuesday will be primarily to apportion delegates to the counties for the state platform convention, Schorr said.

CAR ONLY CLUE

Chicago Police Find Machine Of Slain McGurn Gangster

CHICAGO, Feb. 17.—Finding of "Machinegun Jack" McGurn's automobile, 48 hours after the former "Scarface Al" Capone henchman was "rubbed out" in a second floor bowling alley, gave the police their first tangible clue today in the hoodlum's crude assassination.

In the automobile which was abandoned in an industrial section on the near northside, were two keys, one which the police believed might fit a safe deposit box.

Previous to this the authorities ran up against the usual blank wall of imperturbability surrounding underworld crimes.

Reported threats against the life of the gangster's widow from an undisclosed source gave the police the additional task of guarding her.

Silver Dollars Will Go Rolling Along Toward Salem Dollar Days

Outmoded for several years, the silver dollar will make a comeback here this week.

The "wagon wheels" will go rolling along over the counters of banks and stores. You will be able to actually hear what you're buying, once again.

The silver dollar was not exactly declared unconstitutional, but it has not been in general circulation for some time. However, Salem's semi-annual Dollar Days are scheduled Friday and Saturday and the silver dollar will be the symbol of the trade event.

Banks this week will hand out silver dollars in change. Stores also will distribute the "hard" cash.

And the stores are planning to have a great number of "Silver Dollar Specials" for the Dollar Days merchandising event.

Thrifty folks who accumulate the silver pieces will save them for investment in bargains.

STEELS ADVANCE

Rail and Farm Equipment Demands Push Operations Ahead Again

CLEVELAND, Feb. 17.—Steelworks operations advanced again last week, "resisting adverse weather conditions which slowed shipments, suspended outdoor construction and hampered auto sales," said the magazine Steel today.

The gain was 1 1/2 points, bringing operations to 54 1/2 per cent.

"The influence of railroad purchasing still is dominant," the magazine continued. "Additional orders for freight cars and rails, steady demand for farm equipment, and broadening manufacturing requirements are effectively bridging the gap in automotive and structural activity."

"Still larger tonnages are accumulating, and an appreciable improvement in specifications soon, combined with advancing production costs, may serve to stabilize prices."

WALL STREET'S GUESS IS WRONG

Buys Power Issues and Then Hastens to Sell Them

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—Wall Street guessed wrong on the Supreme court TVA decision today, and after buying thousands of shares of electric power issues, hastened to sell them.

Accustomed to decisions against the government, since the NRA and AAA rulings, traders took power stocks in blocks of 1,000 to nearly 30,000 shares as soon as it was learned that Chief Justice Hughes was reading the TVA decision.

But after nearly an hour, when news of the nature of the decision reached the financial community, traders were dumping their shares right and left. Gains of $1 to $3 in many of the common shares of power companies were more than lost.

The stock market as a whole turned heavy. Leading shares in the utility and other groups dropped from $1 to $2 under yesterday's final prices.

Public utility circles in Wall Street were confused by the decision, and said that at first glance they were unable to interpret its full implications.

They pointed out that the court limited itself chiefly to upholding the validity of the sale of power at the Wilson dam, most of which has been bought since 1925 by the Alabama Power company.

Nevertheless, the decision came as a blow to Wall Street, where high hopes had been held that a broad clearcut ruling which might go far toward settling the controversy between public and private ownership of power might be made.

Merchants Urged To File Invoices

LISBON, Feb. 17.—Invoices, some of which dates back to April, 1936, totaling $1,957.98, have been approved for payment by the liquidation office of the FERA and forwarded to the Columbus office for payment.

Unless merchants file all unpaid invoices here within the next six weeks, it is considered likely that such invoices will have to be forwarded direct to the Columbus office for approval and payment. In the latter event, it is said here that payment will be delayed, due to the fact that the Columbus FERA office will be so crowded with investigations that final payment will be greatly delayed.

MAY SELL SURPLUS CURRENT

Justices Say Question Is Up to Congress, Not Courts

By JAMES W. DOUTHAT, Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—The government won a major victory in the supreme court today when the justices, by eight to one, held the TVA could dispose of surplus power manufactured at Wilson dam at Muscle Shoals.

Justice McReynolds dissented.

Hughes Hands Down Ruling

Chief Justice Hughes handed down the detailed ruling before a crowd of prominent lawyers and members of congress at 1 p. m.

Only power from Wilson dam had been sold by the TVA.

The justices held that federal disposition of power was a question for congress to answer, not the courts.

The court upheld the right of the government to dispose of all surplus power made at dams intended to promote navigation or aid national defense.

The government owned the property, said Hughes, and there was nothing in the Constitution to limit the government's disposition of the power.

The general purposes of TVA, it was decided, present no "justiciable question."

"The Tennessee river is a navigable stream," said Hughes, developing the thesis that the Constitution reposed powers over navigation in the federal government."

Upholds Sale Contract

The court, by its ruling, upheld a contract for sale by the Alabama Power company of transmission lines to the Tennessee valley authority.

The court limited its decision to the case before it.

The right of the government to seek wider markets for power than was provided by the Alabama Power company stands up.

Some of the power produced by the federally-built dams issued by the government, "surplus power" is that not needed by the government.

LIST 50 CARS WITH DEFECTS

Highway Patrol Holds Inspection At 14-7 Intersection; Drivers Are Warned

Salem state highway patrolmen, holding a traffic check at the junction of Routes 14 and 7, just east of Columbiana Saturday afternoon, discovered upon examining 500 automobiles that over 50 of them were being driven with defective lights.

The drivers of these vehicles were issued correction slips and told to have repairs made immediately.

The patrolmen pointed out that many motorists have been driving their cars during the winter months with little regard for safe operation.

Three motorists were arrested during the traffic survey.

Besides stopping 500 passenger cars, the patrol inspected 300 commercial cars.

$167 WORTH

French royalists are supposed to have sustained a blow to their pride when the guillotine blade which decapitated Louis XVI brought only 2,500 francs ($167) at an auction last week. The grisly relic, they thought, should have been worth more than that. It is not disclosed, however, whether or not the high bidder was a royalist himself.

Strangely enough, the guillotine did damage to royalists greater than that of decapitating Louis XVI. Its inventor, a Dr. Guillotin, pleaded that execution by decapitation should not be a privilege for the nobility. The use of the instrument in the French revolution represented in itself the shattered prestige of the nobility.

As devices for capital punishment go, the guillotine was an improvement comparable with the electric chair and the latest device, the lethal chamber. It made execution almost as mechanical as either of the two later methods. Its operation was certain, in contrast to the bloody errors possible in the use of the ax and sword.

Yet, today, a rusty, dull guillotine blade weighing 17 1/2 pounds and bearing, perhaps, a trace of the blood of Louis XVI of France is worth only $167. Apparently, the sentimental attachment of the French to gruesome relics can't begin to equal that of Americans, who would pay almost that much for a slain gangster's tooth, if they had a chance.

THE SWELLING

No critic of the present administration of the federal government thinks of making a speech without at least one mention of the "swollen bureaucracy" which afflicts the taxpayer. The amount of the swelling rarely is described, despite the fact that it is the most important thing. There always has been a bureaucracy, but it has not always been a swollen bureaucracy.

The civil service commission is authority for the following measurements of the swelling under the present administration:

At the end of last December there were 815,789 government employees, compared with 604,711 at the end of January, 1934, and with approximately 572,000 early in the year 1933.

Regular agencies of the executive branch employed 607,359 persons. New agencies created by the present administration employed 55,600 persons. Emergency agencies and units under the relief program employed 152,830 persons.

The increase in the government's payroll from December, 1933, to December, 1935, was 211,078—a jump of almost 35 percent. Less than 7,000 of that number, furthermore, are under civil service. All the rest owe their places to appointments.

The maximum swelling in the federal bureaucracy occurred in 1917, when almost 918,000 persons drew government pay. By 1923, the swelling had been reduced to 516,772. Thereafter, it increased steadily to its present painful proportions.

When it is considered that the total does not include legislative, judicial and military employees nor those of the District of Columbia or the civilian conservation corps, some idea of the significance of the phrase "swollen bureaucracy" begins to filter through the most complacent mind.

ONE OF TWO THINGS

With almost another year to go before Abraham Lincoln's birthday is commemorated again, perhaps an observation on the numerous men who annually portray the great man can be recorded without giving too much offense.

First of all, let it be said that the purpose of Lincoln portrayals is above reproach. Abraham Lincoln was a great man; the desire to do honor to him is commendable in every sense of the word, excepting of course in those southern states which continue skeptical of his greatness.

But one is disturbed, nevertheless, in viewing pictures of Lincoln impersonators in various parts of the country. Either Abraham Lincoln did not look like his photographs, or the moderns who try to portray the emancipator do not look like Lincoln. Maybe in the course of a few more generations the thing will have gone to such extremes that anyone with a stovepipe hat, a shawl and a sad face will be able to portray the great man with impunity. In the meantime, however, objections are in order.

THE STARS SAY

For Tuesday, February 18

A day of great importance is predicted, with the prospect of a far-reaching influence on the future life and destiny depending on the decisions arrived at under the current incitements of important planets. There may be a decided readjustment or reorientation of the affairs and the life interests, with change of environs, associations and interests. These are bound to be advantageous and satisfactory, providing they are not manipulated with reckless or impetuous ardor. Make all decisions with deliberation and forethought as to final issues.

If This Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is on the eve of a very important year, with the entire future dependent on the wisdom of decisions regarding radical changes.

These call for new environs, interests and associations, and should bring profit and happiness if not rashly, impulsively and a too zealously embraced.

Be calm and far sighted in these decisions. A child born on this day may be unusually talented, with energy and ambition, but may also be disposed to be reckless and impetuous, if not trained in infancy.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—In the manner of Arnold Bennetts journal: A fearful yelp from the theatres that out-of-towners prefer a free broadcast to a regular show. Not strange. A picture of a wife and two children. "I buried them last week," he said. And rushed away with a choke.

Something of the Lindbergh look and manner about the newest flying sensation, Howard Hughes. Slim, loosely gaited and Houston born. With the aloofness of the almost totally deafened. His uncle Rupert is also deaf. Billy Bryant, last of the Ohio river show boat troubadours, has brought the manuscript of his career along the mudflats to his publisher. It's on a Spring list. Billy's a feckless loon. But city slicker enough to write a skit for Fannie Brice, on Lee Shubert's order, while in town. And lunches at the Alonquin and "No. 21."

Billys troupe includes his father, sister, wife and daughter. They tie up at my home leave every summer. Featuring "East Lynne," "Ten Night in a Barroom" and such sobbers. All played in deadly earnest. No travesty. Thus showmanship. Those who came to laugh, maybe fear, discover a clutch in the throat. A touch of clowning and Billy knows he would be hooted off the river. He sticks to the past.

Incident: Harry Silvey and I were talking to a city detective on the library corner. Youth shuffled up. Oyster-faced, twitchy. Asked an aim. I wanted to signal him he was soliciting from a copper. Tec acted naive, sympathetic. Would get him something to eat. They walked away. We followed. At 47th street police station turned suddenly in. Beggar old offered. Had $37. Smooth pinch. Accomplished without crowd. Or perhaps a scuffle.

I noticed a story by Fanny Ferber Fox in three of the tippy magazines the same month. A sister of Edna Ferber, who once glorified her in a short story with the title—as I recall—"Fanny Herself." Outside of the unhappy Brontes I cannot recall any other sisters who wrote contemporaneously. The Lyndeckers are a famous pair of brother artists. Morris Gest seems to have a leg up in a comeback with his Chinese play. I'm fond of Morris. One of the town's striking doubles: Mrs. Vincent Astor and her younger sister. Had I some of Vincent Astor's reputed $150,000,000 I'd like to fool around with my own newspaper. To try out a few ideas I've been told are impractical. By some of the same people who told me a syndicated New York column was impractical 20 years ago. Nous avons change tout cela!

HEALTH

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland
New York City

IN FORMER YEARS, an attack of boils was believed to be caused by impoverished blood. We do not hold to that view now, but by right living the blood can be kept pure and abundant. This is important.

Many skin infections, including boils and carbuncles, are caused by a lowered resistance of the body due to the lack of fresh air, sunshine and nourishing food, a state of affairs sure to impoverish the blood.

The infection which produces the boil is due to a germ, usually "staphylococcus aureus." This is a pretty big name, but the ailment it produces is much worse.

This evil germ is ever in our midst. It may be found in any public place where crowds gather. It enters the body through a scratch or other injury of the skin. Usually it is "rubbed into the skin" by friction or pressure, such as is produced by a tight collar. Soiled clothes and dirty hands are responsible for many boils. Uncleanliness predisposes to such skin disturbances because the germ thrives in unsanitary places. Sometimes a localized infection, like that found in diseased teeth and tonsils, or nasal sinuses, gives rise to a boil, which is a deep-seated inflammation of the skin with pus formation.

Faulty Metabolism

Boils are apt to occur when there exists what the scientists call "faulty carbohydrate metabolism." By this is meant that the body is unable to burn or properly dispose of the consumed sugar. When this happens, excessive quantities of sugar are stored in the blood and tissues. Persons who have this defect are very often susceptible to recurring attacks of boils.

One who is afflicted this way should have the urine examined to determine the possible presence of sugar. As a rule he is overweight, leads a sedentary life, and gets too little exercise and fresh air. Common sense dictates what to do under these circumstances.

Recurrent boils are especially common in young persons who indulge freely in rich foods, sweets, fried foods, salt, peppers and spices. Lack of body hygiene is a contributing factor.

The favorite places of attack for boils are the back of the neck, the armpits, buttocks, thighs and groins. A boil may be so painful as to incapacitate the victim and actually to require prolonged rest in bed. When the trouble is as bad as this, usually it can be traced to negligence or improper care of the boil when it first appeared.

Let me warn you against the danger of squeezing a boil or relying upon home remedies. If you squeeze it, there is danger of forcing the germs into the deeper tissues of the body.

To prevent repeated boils it is best to report to your doctor and have him make a complete check of your physical condition. In persistent cases, good results may be obtained by the use of a special vaccine. Speak to your doctor about this.

Dr. Copeland is glad to answer inquiries from readers who send addressed stamped envelopes with their questions. All inquiries should be addressed to him in care of this newspaper.

Calculates War Cost

New British Heir Student Type

Duke and Duchess of York

As King Edward VIII accustoms himself to the unfamiliar duties of sovereign, another member of the royal family, the Duke of York, takes up the equally strange task of his new position as heir-presumptive to the British throne. The Duke of York, next in line of ascent to the crown, is not nearly so well known to the world as his bachelor brother, the present ruler. He is of the studious type, somewhat retiring and reluctant to appear as public speaker. Lacking the genial quality of fellowship possessed by King Edward, the Duke of York is looked on by some as somewhat "high hat." His oldest daughter, Princess Elizabeth, 8, is next in line of ascent to the throne, followed by her sister, Princess Margaret Rose, born on Aug. 21, 1930.

"HIGH SCHOOL TRAGEDY"

by MAXINE CANTY

CHAPTER XVII

Yellow I was talking to didn't know her name. Bernice Carter. She was in an apartment in the district, alone apparently. She knew much about three. She is very quiet goes out most afternoons, but doesn't seem to have a job, has no callers except "Lloyd." "Lloyd" must have money. How serious? "Well don't worry your head about it, Miss Julie. She is some well-to-do woman who has come here to paint or something. He met her at the artist's colony in Carmel. I just wanted you to know that we are working on this angle and I don't want you to be disillusioned if we find out it is more to it than you think." "I worried about it. I thought the Inspector was telling me he knew or thought that there were some possibilities that weren't suggesting to me at all. I was as if he was concentrating on me. I thought he was frank enough in saying he was telling me in order to save me for what might happen. In the matter of fact, I think he was telling me."

"I answered rather sadly. I don't believe he is the man. But I'll find out now whether he is or not. Why do you think he would tell me that?"

The Inspector hesitated a minute before he looked away when he spoke. "Miss Julie, the world is a very big place. A young man falls in love with a girl during a romantic moment. In the prosaic fall, he finds she is just another girl to him. He likes and respects but with the rest of his life. Then to find out she is growing dissatisfied with his growing woman who is not the first girl he is through. He doesn't believe it. We may even find that she tried to hold him to engagement. Maybe he came to her, quarrelled violently with her and then shot her to be rid of her. People do lots of things that are mad, from various emotions, as anger, for instance."

"I was trying to make me understand that he was speaking truthfully. I didn't want to believe it and I rebelled against the thought. But Inspector," I cried, "you are just imagining all that from what I told you and from the fact that he called on a girl three times."

From that and also from the fact that Miss Julie, that the girl, Bernice Carter, was with Lloyd in Sacramento the day he tried to phone her, the day he sent her the yellow roses telling her wedding plans were cancelled."

Well, these new developments were starting. After the Inspector came on and after Mother came home, I thought about them all the time. I felt that Bruce Lloyd had thrown me down. Here I had loved him, had fought for him, and all the time he had been in love with this blonde. It wasn't that I actually in love with him myself. It is hard to explain. But he was the ideal of the kind of man I'd want to marry when I did get around to it. I had been disappointed in him when he admitted letting me down, but I had still adored him. I had excused him for emphasizing to myself the reasonableness and courage of analyzing a marriage before you got into it, of not going through with it, as one were sure of companionship and permanence. They all fit into my own ideals.

But to have thrown Connie overboard, and for one who was so mysterious, too. This Bernice may be a beautiful woman, I thought, but she didn't sound quite nice. Anyway, I know why Dad didn't get away. He had found out the police were hot on Bruce's trail again and had remained in the city. Lloyd should need him. When we got home, Dad was talking on the telephone and I was much excited. I found out I was in a situation that I had thought I had received a letter from which confirmed all my fears. I certainly played right into the Inspector's hands. This was it: San Francisco, November 12, 1933.

Dear Mr. Martin: I am sorry that circumstances force me to a new decision which I know will cause you some embarrassment. I hope to relieve you of that embarrassment very soon. But the fact is that I find it necessary to leave San Francisco for a few days. I cannot say where I am going nor can I give you anyone else any explanation as to why. I expect to be back in three or four days. I do not know how closely the police are watching me; it may be that I will not get far. In that case, things will look very bad for me, I know. But whether I succeed or not, the next few days will be difficult for you. When I return, if allowed to, of my own free will, you will be cleared."

I am sorry for your angle of this. You and Mrs. Martin have been most kind to me. You have shown faith in me. Try to keep that faith a little longer. I assure you I am innocent and I do this because of necessity."

Sincerely yours,
BRUCE LLOYD

That knocked the pins right out from under all of us, so to speak. I don't know which of us three—Dad, Mother, or myself—felt the worst. I guess it was Dad, for Mother was inclined to retain a blind faith in the "boy," and I was more or less prepared for something to happen. Dad was a hard-headed lawyer who had given his own word for the man's good faith, and he certainly had been let down, even taking the letter at its face value.

He was talking to the Inspector, it turned out, when we came in. Of course, he reported the letter to him immediately. O'Brien was getting to work at once. Dad sat around waiting for the telephone to ring.

"I can't believe he'd run away," Mother repeated over and over. "You will find it is just as he says. He has to go for some reason. When his business is completed, he will come back."

"No doubt," said Dad sarcastically. "The only trouble is that his business is probably in a foreign country and will detain him for some ten years!"

I was too busy adjusting my own ideas to say anything. Finally the telephone rang. Dad jumped at it. "Hello, hello! Yes, this is he. Yes, yes. . . He did? Why didn't he follow him? . . . I don't blame you. . . In a blue car with three others? . . . Of course, yes, yes. . . Let me know at once, won't you?"

This conversation was not very enlightening. During it, Allen had come in and Mother had told him what we already knew. He was awfully excited. When Dad turned away from the telephone, we all just looked at him. He ran his hand over his head and slumped into his chair.

"O'Brien has had a report from San Francisco. The man who was supposed to be shadowing Bruce, called him up to tell him he had seen Bruce drive out of town, taking the ferry to Sausalito."

"Where was he?" "He was phoning from a booth at the ferry slip for further instructions while Bruce drove on the boat and sailed away."

"How dumb!" "O'Brien is cussing a blue streak."

DIGESTION is often overtaxed by our tense . . . hurried existence!

Smoking Camel Cigarettes Aids in Assuring Natural Digestive Action

"Hurry—hurry—hurry" seems to be the order of the day. People get caught in the lockstep of modern life. Tension finds the weak spot, so often—digestion. It has been shown that smoking Camels improves digestion . . . wards off the consequences of hurried, nervous living. Camels stimulate digestive action. They promote the feeling of well-being and good cheer so necessary to the proper assimilation of food. Camels set you right! And, in smoking Camels for digestion's sake, you may enter a whole new world of smoking pleasure. So turn to Camels. Expect an enticing mildness. Enjoy the appealing flavor of costlier tobaccos! They never tire your taste!

COSTLIER TOBACCOS

WATCH YOUR STEP— a scene in which we all are actors. The rush tells on even the strongest. It's comforting to know that smoking Camels promotes healthy digestion . . . gently stimulates the natural processes.

F. B. FOWLER on Star Route 1392, Maine, says: "It's eat-and-run with me, but I always top off with Camels. They are good for digestion."

Legion Auxiliary Ends Program

Committees and chairmen in charge of the activities for American Legion auxiliary week reported that the week's campaign, conducted by the auxiliary members here to obtain funds for their welfare program, was successful. Final check-ups have not been made but tentative surveys showed a considerable amount was received.

A party at the post home Saturday night concluded a week of benefits to aid the welfare and rehabilitation funds of the auxiliary, which have been depleted during the winter through the aid given to many needy families. Bingo, bridge and dancing with a lunch later, were features of the party.

On Friday the auxiliary members had a covered luncheon at the post home when the money each had earned during the week was turned over to the chairman. It was announced that the Reds, the team captained by Mrs. Henry Yagel, were victorious in the campaign. Mrs. C. M. Carey was captain of the defeated team, the Blues.

It is probable that since the project was successful this year, the first time it has ever been held, the auxiliary will make American Legion Auxiliary week an annual observance.

New Deal Itself The Basic Issue On Voters' Minds

(By Associated Press)

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of a series on the 1936 presidential campaign, its issues and its personalities.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—The New Deal, itself, is accepted widely as the basic issue before the American electorate in 1936.

But before reaching a final decision on this, the voters must pass on many auxiliary and attendant issues—the huge New Deal spending program, the resulting deficit, the monetary policy, the extension of federal regulation and control, and others.

Status of Recovery

All these have their bearing on another factor in the campaign, about which much will be said—the status of recovery.

Has the New Deal brought about, helped along, or hindered recovery?

Historically, the administration in power always claims credit for any betterment in the nation's economic life. The Roosevelt administration claims such credit.

It points to the increase in commodity prices, in stock levels, in industrial and building activity.

It maintains its policies are responsible for this improvement and argues that the result has been well worth the price, not only in the extent of improvement, but in meeting the needs of relief.

The opposition, also following historic precedents, sets forth a different view of recovery.

Many business and industrial leaders voice the opinion that economic recovery came despite the New Deal, that it was inevitable. Some of these contend the New Deal created a fear among business men that retarded recovery.

LINK SLAYINGS IN YOUNGSTOWN

Body of Victim Thrown Into Ditch, Sprayed With Oil, Burned

(By Associated Press)

YOUNGSTOWN, Feb. 17.—The finding of a blazing body in a roadside ditch sent Sheriff Roy Hardman and police hunting today for a possible connection with a slaying one week ago.

Identity of the latest victim was unknown, but his clothing indicated he was from Youngstown, the sheriff said. A few footprints, including those of a woman, and a report that a car had been seen near the body were other clues.

A week ago yesterday the bullet-riddled body of John Pappas, Detroit, was found in a roadside ditch near Girard. He was identified by Warren police as a former gambler in Warren. Harry Ginteret, a farmer, viewed the body and said Pappas was the man who had taken $1,000 from him recently in a confidence game. Sheriff Hardman said gangsters apparently had killed Pappas but no trace of the slayers was found.

Discovery of the flaming body yesterday was made by Clarence Summer of Youngstown and a woman companion who were driving near suburban Hubbard. They saw a car with exceptionally bright lights speeding away, they said.

Coroner J. C. Henshaw said the man had been shot in the head and neck. Then kerosene was poured over his body and set fire. A five-gallon kerosene can was found nearby. Auto tracks indicated the car had backed off the road, dumped out the body, turned around and headed back toward Youngstown.

The victim was about 35 or 40, weighed about 170 pounds and was five feet eight inches tall. His hair was brown, streaked with gray. He wore a blue jacket.

In the man's possession was a 17-jewel (Waltham) watch, which was inscribed inside the case "P. S. Bartlett, Waltham, Mass." Hardman said this probably was a jeweler's name.

Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Ellen Alberts; a daughter, Miss Stella Alberts; of Sebring; four sons, Clarence, Paul, Herman and William, of Sebring; 11 grandchildren; one sister, Mrs. Bessie Barnes, of Lisbon, and three brothers, William of Youngstown, and George and Charles of Lisbon.

Theater Attractions

Jeanette MacDonald plays the title role in "Rose Marie," the musical operetta by Rudolf Friml, to be shown at the State theater tonight and tomorrow. Nelson Eddy, who co-starred with Miss MacDonald in the excellent musical show, "Naughty Marietta" again appears opposite her, this time in the role of Sergeant Bruce of the Northwest Indian Mounted police.

"Indian Love Call" from the operetta is familiar to all. Miss MacDonald and Eddy sing this beautiful song.

Miss MacDonald as Rose Marie plays a lovely opera star whose brother is an escaped convict in Canada. The girl dons old clothes and goes into the wilds of Canada to hunt her brother who is in hiding in the cabin of an Indian. On the trail of the convict also, is Eddy in his role of the mountie.

Enroute, Rose Marie is robbed by the Allan who is guiding her to the cabin and to earn the necessary money she sings in a dance hall. Her operatic voice does not please the tough customers in the cafe and she is discharged. Bruce recognizes her as the opera star and follows her. He offers to help her and get her money from the Indian who stole it. He takes her to the place where the Indians are gathered together to stage their dances. Here the dance of the totem pole is shown. The settings and outdoor scenery are beautiful.

Miss MacDonald manages to see the Indian who stole her money and he returns it and joins her in the hunt for her brother. Eddy follows her, suspicious by this time of her presence in this wild country. The Indian, frightened, deserts her. Eddy takes care of her and they go on together. They fall deeply in love with each other, but he cannot shirk his duty, even though it means that he lose her. She leads him right to her brother and Eddy arrests him.

Believing he tricked her, Rose Marie goes back to the theater, but one night Eddy answers her "Indian Love Call" song from off stage and together they finish the song.

Phone Currents Regulated To Meet Weather Changes

IF IT weren't for ingenious weather regulators, a sudden cold snap or an unexpected heat wave would play havoc with long distance telephone service. Telephone cables are sensitive to quick changes in temperature. On the coldest winter day a cable is as much as 25 per cent shorter, electrically, than on the hottest summer day. This is due to the fact that when a cable contracts because of the cold its molecular structure is condensed, making it a better electrical conductor. The reverse is true as the temperature rises. To overcome this fluctuation of the electrical length of cables, amplification of speech-carrying currents must be correspondingly greater in the summer than in the winter. Regulating amplification to fit weather conditions is the job of intricate mechanisms, located at 100 to 200-mile intervals along all important telephone cable routes of the nation. Technically, they are known as pilot wire regulators. Thin pilot wires, installed in cables along with voice-carrying circuits, transmit the exact temperature of the cable to the regulator. The regulator then automatically adjusts the volume of current over the cable through a system of relays. The regulator closely resembles a mechanical temperature recorder and produces a permanent chart of temperatures for reference of telephone engineers. They are installed in American Telephone and Telegraph Company repeater stations throughout Ohio and other states. Control of volume is particularly important when the temperature of cables is lowered suddenly by blizzards or rain storms, telephone engineers state.

Dover High's Veteran Quintet Defeats Salem Cagers, 25-17

Quakers Given Chance For Victory In Contest At Alliance Tomorrow

Lanky Web Fox Is Outstanding in Dover's Victory Over Quakers; Crimson Takes Early Lead and Holds It Throughout Game

Dover High school's Crimson quintet, the pride of Tuscarawas county's court teams, carried its campaign of victory into the high school gymnasium here Saturday night and added the 13th triumph to its season's record by forcing the Salem High school Quakers to accept a 25 to 17 defeat.

The Quakers, who waged a practically hopeless battle against the Crimson, are offered an opportunity to return to the victory column tomorrow night when they play a return engagement with Alliance High school's Aviators at Mt. Union college gym in Alliance. The Aviators, minus the services of Douglas Starks who graduated at mid-year, are the only cagers the Quakers meet twice this season.

In the Quakers' contest Saturday night, Dover was clearly the master. The Crimson took the lead mid-way in the first quarter and at no time throughout the remainder of the game was it forced to relinquish its advantage in the scoring column.

The big edge in height given the Crimson by Web Fox, lanky center who towers near the six-foot, five-inch mark, was enough to permit it to have possession of the ball during most of the contest. Fox, who led the Crimson in scoring with eight points, made practically all of the backboard recoveries and was never out-jumped on the tip-off.

Additional Advantage

The Crimson would have been seriously handicapped without the aid of its elongated center but there's another lad, Bobby Rimer, forward, whose heady floor-play and snappy ball handling gave the Dover quintet additional advantage in the contest. Rimer, the smallest of the Dover cagers, is only rivaled by Porter Mackey of East Liverpool as the best player to perform on the Salem High hardwoods this season.

Despite the fact that they were defeated, the Quakers deserve mention for a fine showing against the Crimson, which has, in marking up 12 other victories to date, bowled over several of the leading quintets of northeastern Ohio.

Clay Raynes and Kenneth Shears shared scoring honors for the Quakers, each collecting six points. Eddie Pukalski contributed three points to the Quakers' total and Delmar Schaffer two. Max Lutsch, the Red and Black's center, seemed reluctant to attempt shots during the contest and failed to score.

The outstanding weakness in the Quakers' performance was in foul shooting. They converted but one of six attempts from the foul line. Likewise, Dover was poor in foul shooting, completing only seven of its 16 gift shots.

Quakers Hold Lead

In the opening period of the contest, the Quakers managed to hold the lead for several minutes when two long range shots by Shears and Pukalski swished through the netting without touching the hoop to give them a one-point edge, four to three. Their advantage was short-lived, however, and by the close of the period Web Fox and Don Everett had scored from under the basket to put Dover out in front, seven to four.

Again shooting from long range during most of the second period, the Quakers couldn't locate the basket and went scoreless while Dover added seven points to its first period total and held a commanding 14 to 4 lead at half time.

Dover missed four out of five shots from the foul line in the third period and was forced to play on even terms with the Quakers as both teams scored seven points. The period ended with the Crimson still holding a 10-point lead 21 to 11.

Taking only enough shots to hold its advantage and "freezing" the ball at other times, Dover permitted the Quakers to outscore it, six points to four, in the final quarter.

The Quaker reserves chalked up a victory in the preliminary contest when they won out over the Trojan quintet of the Class B city league, 23 to 18.

The Trojan team, composed of players who are in high school, trailed throughout the contest. The reserves led 11 to 5 at the intermission.

Officials For Class B Tourney Listed

Wilbur Lambeth of Leetonia and Raymond Sexton of Lisbon will officiate at the Columbiana County Class B schools basketball tournament at Salem High school gymnasium Friday and Saturday, Feb. 21 and 22, tournament director J. F. Swearingen, of Salineville, revealed today.

The draw for the tournament also was announced. Columbiana will meet Fairfield at 8 o'clock Friday night and at 9 Salineville is to play New Waterford. The Friday night losers will meet at 8 o'clock Saturday night in the consolation battle and the two winners will play it out immediately following that game.

A silver trophy will be awarded the winning team. The ball used in the tournament will be given to the runner-up.

Coaches To Plan For Youngstown Tourney

The Northeastern Ohio District basketball coaches will meet at East High school in Youngstown Wednesday night to make plans for the tournament.

With the addition of Lisbon, Niles and Newton Falls to the fourteen teams who competed last year, Director Harley Littler may stage a special preliminary elimination Feb. 29 to reduce the list to sixteen teams for the official opening on March 2.

The five Youngstown schools, Salem, Hubbard, Campbell Memorial, Struthers, Girard, Niles, East Palestine, Lisbon Boardman, Sebring and Newton Falls will participate in the Youngstown tourney with three teams going to the Akron tournament.

Winter Olympics Attract Over Million Sports Fans

GARMISCH-PARTENKIRCHEN, Germany, Feb. 17.—The twin villages of Garmisch and Partenkirchen, mecca for a million winter sports enthusiasts during the past ten days, were recovering today from what was probably the biggest day in their history at the conclusion of the fourth Olympic winter games.

Officials estimated the total attendance during the 10 days of the games at one million, of whom 800,000 paid admissions to the various events. No estimate was available on gate receipts but they were believed to have been ample to cover all expenses.

The games themselves, in which Norway's sturdy ski runners and jumpers and polished speed skaters, swamped the opposition to the tune of 146 points in the unofficial scoring, furnished a sharp contrast to the Olympics of 1932 at Lake Placid when the United States swept the boards.

America managed to retain only one of the six titles it won at Lake Placid, the two-man bobsled championship. Ivan Brown and Alan Washbond, of Keene Valley, N. J., skinned down the icy chute Saturday to win that event by a bare fraction of a second.

Major Upset

An even greater upset came in the hockey where Great Britain sheared Canada of the laurels she had won in every previous Olympic competition after a bitter series of arguments over the eligibility of two British players.

Conquering Canada in the second round, the British team virtually clinched the title by holding the Americans to a scoreless tie Saturday and was assured of victory yesterday when the Canadians turned back the United States in one of the most exciting games of the series, 1 to 0.

Final team standing (unofficial 10-5-4-3-2-1 basis): Norway 146, Germany 117, Sweden 49, Finland 41, United States 35, Switzerland 30, Austria 29, Great Britain 16, France 11, Canada 9, Czechoslovakia 7, Hungary 7, Belgium 5, Japan 3, Italy 3, Poland 2.

Rudloff with 24, Trobec with 15 and Switzer who had 12 points led the Palestine scoring splurge. Moulip starred for Louisville.

East Palestine made short work of the home crew, having a 13-7 lead at the first quarter, 31-15 at the half and 47-24 when the third set expired.

ONLY ONE TILT REMAINING FOR MARIETTA FIVE

Certain to Win Ohio Conference, Pioneers Invade Otterbein

COLUMBUS, Feb. 17.—Marietta, king of the Ohio conference winds up its league schedule this week. The Pioneer invasion of Westerville for a final tilt with Otterbein Saturday night features the week's 33-game Ohio college basketball slate.

The Pioneers, following their close win over Wittenberg Saturday, seem to have the Ohio loop flag clinched, but Otterbein is given a fine chance to mar the unbeaten record of the Ohio River team.

Another Masterpiece

Another masterpiece scheduled Saturday night takes Cincinnati's unbeaten Bearcats, Buckeye loop leaders, to Delaware for a joust with the second-place Ohio Wesleyan team, last year's champion.

The Bearcats are sure of a slice of the title. No matter what happens. Of the 33 games slated this week 16 are in the Ohio conference, four in the Buckeye, and 13 are just basketball games. Ohio State, after kicking the dope bucket all over the court in defeating Indiana 43 to 34 Saturday night, runs into a week of leisure.

"SLOW WHISTLE" RULE ABOLISHED

Plays Will Be Stopped a Split Second Quicker in '36 Grid Games

PALM SPRINGS, Calif., Feb. 17.—The 1936 edition of the college football rule book was ready for the printers today, practically the same as its 1935 predecessor.

The National Collegiate Football Rules committee spent three days here taking the old book apart. They put it back together with several minor changes and one major "suggestion."

The "suggestion" was that the so-called "slow whistle" be eliminated. The delayed whistle made it possible for a ball carrier to break away, kick or flip a lateral pass after he had been checked by a tackler. The suggestion means play will be stopped a split second quicker.

Other Changes

Players may run pass or kick a blocked punt that hasn't crossed the scrimmage line. Heretofore the ball has been dead on recovery.

Players are ineligible to receive passes cannot take a position in advance of the spot where the ball is either caught or knocked down.

Teams must be ready to play the second half without notification or suffer a 15-yard penalty. Formerly the loss was 25 yards.

Referees will not be too drastic if a player brushes a punter in a legitimate manner. If the offense appears deliberate, last year's five-yard penalty holds good.

A regulation size football for all schools and numerals on both the front and back of uniforms.

BOARDMAN, Feb. 17.—"Buck" Burke's Boardman High cagers came to life here Saturday to register a 29-21 verdict over Struthers High.

Trailing 7-5 at the end of the first quarter, Boardman forged ahead 3-9 at halftime and increased the margin to 23-15 when the third frame ended.

Wagman, Beard and Bergman paced the victory while Anderson contributed 10 points to the Struthers' cause. Bergman of Boardman was ousted on personals in the third period.

Cream of Turf Entered in $100,000 Handicap

Favored contenders in the $100,000 handicap at Santa Anita, Cal., Feb. 22, include Azucar, winner last year; Cavalcade, winner of the 1934 Kentucky Derby; Discovery, which took second in the same event and has since been burning up the turf, and Time Supply, the horse which recently broke the track record for the mile and one furlong. One of the features of the classic will be the duel between Discovery and Cavalcade, which have finished one-two on numerous occasions, but with Cavalcade always in front until the Derby winner sustained an injury in the fall of 1933.

Pennzip Lassies Face Pittsburgh Team

Seeking to avenge a defeat handed it several weeks ago at Pittsburgh, the Salem Pennzip lassies entertain the Golden Vanities in a return engagement at the Memorial building tonight.

The Salem lassies, who have lost four other games to date, were defeated, 31 to 24, in the previous contest with the Pittsburgh girls' quintet.

The contest between the Salem and Pittsburgh girls' teams will be played along with three other games that will open the second round of play in the Class A city basketball league.

These contests will send the Saxons against the Trades Class, the first round champion Columbians against the Fleetwings and the Old Timers against Winona.

SPANISH POLICE KEPT ON ALERT

State of Alarm Follows Six Slayings During General Election

(By Associated Press) MADRID, Feb. 17.—A "state of alarm," to last eight days was declared throughout Spain today following the deaths of six persons in yesterday's general election.

The state of alarm—which requires that police authorities be constantly on the alert but does not suspend civil processes—was proclaimed in the face of rumors that a "state of war" might be instituted.

Cabinet Session Called Authorities feared that disorders might result from large Leftist gains in the election. A cabinet session was called.

The failure of the government to give out any official reports on the election results led to a belief that the Leftists had proved stronger than had hitherto been admitted, in their campaign against the government Center-Rightist coalition for seats in the new parliament.

Although six were killed in election disputes, officials said the day passed more quietly than previous Spanish election days.

The ministers authorized the state of alarm and indicated that a state of war could be decreed at once should necessity arise.

President Zamora's family was transferred from the Zamora home to the presidential palace where there were more facilities for defense.

The government authorized the publication and broadcasting of a manifesto by the Socialists and left Republicans in which they claimed victory and called on their party members to maintain order and tranquility.

Town Snowed In

HATFIELD, O., Feb. 17.—Snow-trapped Hatfield's 200 marooned townspeople doled out dwindling food supplies today while rescuers battled to open an emergency road to the town before nightfall.

Aided by two snow plows, volunteers had cleared a dirt road, impassable for a month, to a point four miles from town.

Only 10 pounds of sugar and a dozen sacks of flour remained in Charley Jones' general store.

Coal and kerosene were exhausted weeks ago. Old buildings and shade trees were chopped for firewood. One woman had ripped up the floor of her home for fuel.

Hatfield is 16 miles from a railroad.

"She Comes and Gets It"

CINCINNATI, Feb. 17.—The Ohio river was a rising ribbon of white today, its swelling tide carrying churning flocks of ice and the threat of flood to lowland sections.

Navigation was at a standstill. Government warnings for the protection of property were broadcast to owners of boats and riverfront property.

Near-zero temperatures added to the discomfort.

Serious damage will be averted for the time at least, by receding temperatures, rivermen and lowland dwellers believed.

But they viewed ice-strewn levees with misgivings—as they have for the past two weeks. They recalled an adage of the river, that "when she puts ice high on the banks, she comes and gets it."

CAUGHT A COLD

To help end it sooner rub throat and chest with VICK'S VAPORUB

An anti-cyclonic area of marked intensity still covers the northwest under the influence of which temperatures continue unprecedently low over the Missouri valley and the middle plains states. The prevailing temperatures this morning are from 30 to 40 degrees or more below normal over the Missouri valley and zero temperatures extend to southern Kansas and eastward to the upper lake region.

The indications are this cold area will overspread the upper Mississippi and Ohio valleys and the lower lake region in the next 36 hours and therefore colder weather with snow may be expected in this vicinity tonight and Tuesday, the change to colder probably amounting to a moderate cold wave.

Hauptmann May Be Resentenced To Death Today

(By Associated Press)

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 17.—Bruno Richard Hauptmann, persisting in his denial of the Lindbergh baby kidnap-slaying, may be resented today or tomorrow to die for the crime.

The convicted man underwent a long period of sharp questioning last night by Samuel S. Liebowitz, New York attorney who recently was added to Hauptmann's defense staff.

Progress Reported "We are making progress," Liebowitz said as he left the conference in Hauptmann's death cell in the New Jersey state prison.

Liebowitz refused to explain what he meant by "progress," but it was learned afterward that Hauptmann had not changed his story.

After the prison conference, Liebowitz hurried to the South Amboy home of Governor Harold G. Hoffman, whose 30-day reprieve of Hauptmann's first death sentence expired Saturday at midnight.

Subsequently, the governor reiterated that he would not grant the condemned man another reprieve unless Attorney General David T. Wilentz agreed one was necessary.

With the first reprieve expired, state attorneys planned to ask Justice Thomas W. Trenchard, who presided at Hauptmann's Flemington trial, to set a new execution date. This would fall sometime between March 23 and April 18.
